InvestorForce Forms Data Partnership With eVestment Alliance

Firms' consulting clients to benefit from consistent data applied across manager research, due diligence, and investment reporting functions

WAYNE, PA, and ATLANTA, March 16, 2010 – InvestorForce, Inc. and eVestment Alliance (eVestment), leading and complementary web-based investment information providers serving institutional consultants and investment managers, are pleased to announce an agreement to incorporate eVestment's manager universe data into InvestorForce's reporting platform. Institutional consulting clients of both firms can now access consistent data across their research and investment reporting functions.

The new partnership provides both firms' consulting clients with a single and seamless access point to the daily plan information and manager universe data necessary to power the investment reports they provide to their institutional investor clients, noted Jim Morrissey, chief executive officer of Wayne, PA-based InvestorForce.

InvestorForce will now be the only performance measurement and investment reporting platform exclusively focused on institutional consultants that integrates the eVestment data directly into its platform for consultants' use.

"We are delighted to partner with eVestment Alliance and deliver enhanced capabilities to benefit our joint consulting clients," said Morrissey. "Considering eVestment's reputation as a leader in providing robust manager universe data, we see great opportunities for our clients to better serve the plans they represent and increase the value of their analysis, research, and reporting."

"This important step will provide consultants improved access to consistent data used to support their advice and compare actual performance results," said Heath Wilson, co-founder and chief marketing officer of Atlanta-based eVestment. "We are excited about the possibilities that this and further data integration can deliver to the consultant marketplace."
